What Teamster Facility Maintenance Workers Are Saying At United

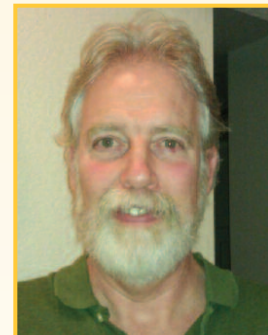

"I have been with United for 20 years and currently work at WHQ facilities. I feel that for the first time, thanks to the Teamsters, I finally have the representation and support to secure a better way of life for me and my family."

—Mike Gray, UAL Facilities, ORD

"The Teamsters have opened up stations for ground equipment and facilities at United with their first contract. We now have the right to review contracts with vendors when it comes to outsourced facility work so we can bring the work in house. The trades are also recognized with license pay and we have true scope language."

—Ken Meidinger, UAL Facilities, DEN

"We now have an industry-leading contract. With this new contract in place, the company doesn't fool around with us anymore. They take us seriously and handle grievances in a timely manner. Teamsters have negotiated with the company to re-open previously closed stations, and opened up more stations than any other union."

—Bob Lavenuta, UAL GSE, IAD

What Teamster Facility Maintenance Workers Are Saying At United

“Before the Teamsters came in, we lost GSE work in Boston. I had to move to IAD for two years so I could keep working. But with their strong representation and negotiating power, the Teamsters were able to get United to reopen the GSE facility at BOS. Today I am back home thanks to the Teamsters.”

–Robbie Sarofeen, UAL GSE, BOS

“During my 34-year career as an airline employee, I have been represented by three separate unions. I am most fortunate to now be part of the best of them all. The Teamsters are the best representative with the best leadership I have experienced in an airline union. I hope you’ll elect to join the rest of us and be part of the greatest union of all – the Teamsters.”

–Jay Obst, UAL GSE, IAD

Like our brothers and sisters at United Airlines, the Teamsters are committed to representing all maintenance and related class and craft workers at American Airlines. In addition to AMTs and unlicensed mechanics, the Teamsters will use their vast resources to represent all facility maintenance employees and will fight to bring outsourced facility work back in house.

THE TEAMSTERS ARE OUR ONLY CHANCE FOR CHANGE AT AMERICAN AIRLINES!
