Momentum Builds as Teamsters at United Airlines Move Negotiations Forward

Teamsters negotiating with United Airlines made meaningful progress during the most recent round of bargaining in Boston this week, completing five passes between the committee and the company in just two days and continuing to move discussions forward on key issues.

The pace of negotiations has picked up as both sides worked through proposals and narrowed differences on several important topics. During this session, your bargaining team was able to close out several high-value items that will significantly improve the lives of members.

These developments mark another big step forward in the bargaining process and pave the way for an industry-leading contract for Teamsters technicians and related employees at United Airlines.

Negotiations will continue at the end of this month in Chicago, where the committee looks forward to building on the progress made this week and carrying the current momentum into the next round of bargaining.
